Trade Skills 4U, the UK's premier electrical training company is excited to announce the launch of a brand new website, which went live on the 26 August 2019.

The new website allows visitors to browse the widest range of electrical training courses and qualifications in the UK. It has been designed to help users find the right course to either get qualified to pursue a successful career in the electrical industry, or for existing electricians to upskill allowing them to offer additional services to their customers, thus future proofing their earning potential.

This new website redesign has been created specifically with the user experience in mind, and is fully responsive across all devices with many improved features to help visitors quickly and easily navigate the site. These include an easy course search function, a blog and news section, a company bespoke training section, reviews and feedback, centre location pages with interactive videos and maps, allowing visitors to take a sneak preview at their fantastic state-of-the-art training facilities, plus much more.
The new clean and bright design is also supported by informative content pages for those that want to learn more.

Trade Skills 4U invites visitors to explore its newly designed website.
