

New app will let uni students print for FREE (Launching 1 September 2017)

Submitted by: GK and Partners

Wednesday, 2 August 2017

Printt app is projected to save students GBP 1.1m in 2017/18.

Printt (<http://www.printtapp.com>) is a new app that every student, from fresher to Ph.D. candidate, would be remiss not to download in advance of the academic year.

Printt's ex-student founders say that using the app to print FREE lecture notes, essays and dissertations will save every student an average of GBP 400 a year, adding up to GBP 1,200 over a three-year degree. That's a lot of money saved for new laptops and beer! Gone will be the days of scrambling for change to top up printer credit or lost USB panic.

How does it work?

Once you've downloaded Printt app - it's free from the App Store and Google Play - and logged in, you simply upload documents to the cloud and locate your nearest Printt printer in your student union or accommodation. As long you are within 5 metres of a machine you can print to any A4 specification – black and white or colour, single or double-sided – with just the tap of your phone.

How does Printt make the printing free?

Each page has a small, student-relevant advert inserted at the bottom.

How will I know if my Uni has a Printt printer?

Over 80% of students will have access to a Printt app-enabled printer by the start of the academic year. Printt's map will show you where your closest printer is. As well as universities, accommodation providers like Unite Students, Liberty Living and Urbanest have all signed up too.

Anything else I need to know?

Each month Printt will run a prize draw for its users. Prizes will include trainers, clothes, cinema tickets, and a whole lot more.

ends

For more information or to arrange a journalist demonstration before September:

Mark Cooper / Natasha Self

Gerard Kelly & Partners, 020 3763 2700 mark.cooper@gkandpartners.com