As the nights begin to draw in and the leaves start to turn, Forestry England have announced that their Enchanted Christmas trail will be returning to Westonbirt, The National Arboretum this December, with an all-new theme and spectacular light displays.

This year's theme will feature a new Christmas Illuminated Trail with a search for Father Christmas at his West Pole outpost located amongst the magnificent trees of Westonbirt, The National Arboretum.

This magical Christmas experience will take visitors on a night-time journey through the woodland as they set out on a quest to find the West Pole. As they wind their way along the path, visitors will find themselves transported into a magical world, surrounded by twinkling lights and sparkling illuminations.

Paul Cody, Head of Visitor Attraction at Westonbirt Arboretum said:

“We are very excited that Father Christmas will be using the National Arboretum as an outpost to help him around the world this Christmas. December is a very busy time of year for him and his elves; delivering toys to all the children of the world is no easy task! Here at the National Arboretum we are delighted to be able to be of assistance to him this Christmas.”

Due to popular demand tickets are available through advance booking only, and can be booked by visiting (http://www.forestryengland.uk/westonbirt/enchanted-christmas)

Hannah Ward, Event Manager at Westonbirt Arboretum said:

‘Now in its 22nd year, Enchanted Christmas is one of the highlights in our calendar here at Westonbirt; since its beginnings as a small trail with a few simple lights, it has grown to be one of the best Christmas light displays in the UK. Our mission here at the arboretum is to connect people with trees, and we are always looking for unusual and creative ways to do this. At a time when many of our trees are bare of leaves and flowers, this night-time experience gives us the opportunity to showcase their amazing structures, textures and silhouettes, allowing people to see these magnificent plants in a different light.’
