With BullGuard VPN, users can hide their origin IP address and prevent ISPs, social media platforms and government organisations from monitoring their online browsing activity. The websites a user visits, the content they upload or download, or what applications and services they use are all kept completely private.

BullGuard VPN automatically launches when a device starts up and includes an auto-connect for open Wi-Fi networks. Users receive secure connections into unprotected Wi-Fi hotspots, which are common in airports, hotels and cafes, protecting them against data theft, malware, privacy breaches and cyberattacks via Wi-Fi. BullGuard VPN customers can also enjoy BullGuard's renowned 24/7 customer support, regular software updates and a no-logs policy.

BullGuard VPN also includes a kill switch that automatically disconnects your computer, smartphone or tablet from the internet if the VPN drops off and reconnects to the internet once the connection is restored.
