“The talent landscape is constantly evolving and we are at an exciting point where sector experts are redefining what the staffing sector looks like and how it operates. In order for us to remain at the forefront of the latest thinking, it is crucial that we include our end clients in our ecosystem. The OutSource Client Community has been created to ensure that we can continue to understand their challenges and receive their insight, guidance and opinion on a wide range of topics relating to the talent and outsourcing landscape.

“I’m extremely excited to be working with such a prestigious group of individuals and I’m looking forward to hearing their insight at our events and getting them involved in our research projects of the next year.”
