Martin's remit will be to drive the company's growth and international expansion

London, 8th February 2022 - Ogury (<https://ogury.com/>), a global technology leader in mobile advertising anchored in privacy protection, today announced the appointment of Geoffroy Martin (<https://www.linkedin.com/in/geoffroy-martin-2592531/>) as Chief Operating Officer. In his role, Martin will spearhead the company's ongoing global expansion and oversee a broad scope of functions, from revenue, operations, product, to technology and marketing.

With over 20 years of senior leadership experience in technology companies, Martin is a dual French-American citizen who spent the bulk of his career in Silicon Valley.

Martin was the CEO of Art.com from 2010 to 2015, which he grew to become the world's largest online art retailer, serving more than 19 million customers in 150 countries. Prior to joining Ogury, Martin was General Manager and Executive Vice President of Growth Portfolio at Criteo, where he built and managed the Retail Media Division. Under his leadership, the division's revenue more than tripled.

Martin will be based in Paris and report directly to Ogury's CEO Thomas Pasquet. "We have great ambitions for the coming years. In 2022 alone, we're planning on opening more than a dozen markets and hiring several hundred new talents. In light of this, strengthening our C-Level management team was a must," said Thomas Pasquet, CEO, Ogury. "Geoffroy joins Ogury with a stellar track record in organisational management within fast-growing companies and extensive knowledge of the AdTech industry. He is the perfect fit for this position and will play a key role in driving our growth in 2022 and beyond."

"The online advertising industry is undergoing a major transformation, especially with the progressive deprecation of third-party cookies and advertising IDs. The industry is consolidating and only a handful of players will be able to thrive in the future," said Geoffroy Martin, Chief Operating Officer, Ogury. "I am convinced that with our ability to combine comprehensive audience interest and privacy protection, Ogury will be among them. And I'm excited to have the chance to contribute to this great future."
