PC-Duo Enterprise is now available in Ireland

Tamworth, Staffordshire, UK – 9th January 2003 - Vector Networks <http://www.vector-networks.com>, a provider of desktop management solutions that reduce the cost of owning PCs, has appointed Datacomms Technology Services the authorized Vector Channel Partner for Ireland. Datacomms is a value-added reseller that provides a variety of products and services to their clients that now includes the PC-Duo Enterprise desktop management software.

Sean Murphy, Director, Datacomms Technology Services, remarks, "We are very pleased to be partnering with Vector Networks. We were initially interested in only the Remote Control module of their PC-Duo Enterprise product, which when tested in our labs and the field beat all other competing products. After testing the other modules - Inventory, Distribution, Metering, Diagnostics and HelpDesk - we decided that PC-Duo Enterprise was a suite of products that we wanted to be involved with. They have a superior product in PC-Duo Enterprise and we look forward to a mutually beneficial partnership."

Lee Griffin, International Channels Manager, notes, "The Vector Networks website offers a fully functional, free 30-day trial of PC-Duo Enterprise. During the last 6 months we have seen an increasing interest from organisations in Ireland requesting to download and evaluate our products. It's important that we find partners that can support the current interest and penetrate the market-place even further."

Vector Networks Product Line

PC-Duo Enterprise is an integrated suite of desktop management modules that provide centralised desktop management for reducing the total cost of PC ownership. PC-Duo Enterprise has a unique, modular architecture allowing IT organisations the flexibility to purchase and implement functional modules as required and avoid software overlap and unnecessary "bundle" purchases. The available suite modules are Remote Control, Inventory, Distribution, Metering, Diagnostics and HelpDesk solutions. Designed to run out-of-the box, PC-Duo Enterprise is easy to implement and can be deployed within days, not months like traditional system management tools. PC-Duo Enterprise offers an enterprise framework without the complexity or high price tag of other products in the market.
