Industrial door, shutter and shading motor specialist, Elero, has signed an exclusive distribution agreement with Tousek to distribute their gate and barrier drive systems in the UK. "The Austrian built Tousek products are renowned for their reliability, original design and adaptability to meet the needs of even the most demanding client," commented Elero technical director Andy Perry.

Tousek drives are used across Europe on industrial plants, commercial developments, car parks, military bases, prisons, municipal sites and wherever reliable perimeter access control is required. Elero will offer systems for barriers and gates based on three phase, single phase or hydraulic drives. The company can automate both hinged and sliding gates. Tousek's extensive catalogue will make it possible to engineer custom solutions for every client need including integration with other security and safety systems.

Elero UK will provide full pre and post sale support to designers, contractors and users. "This franchise compliments our core business supplying motor and controls for security and solar shading. Now we will be able to offer clients a one-stop service based on hardware and systems of the highest quality," Perry advised.
