Industry's Leading KVM Technology Company Gains CCC's Intellectual Property and Inventory, and Plans to Help CCC's Enterprise Customer Base

Guildford, UK (October 15, 2003) -- Raritan Computer, Inc., the leading provider of KVM (keyboard/video/mouse) and remote management solutions for access and control of servers and other network devices, today announced that it has acquired the assets of CCC Network Systems Group Limited, a UK-based KVM vendor. CCC's FreeVision™ solutions, which provide device management and remote access for data centres, are installed in some of the world's largest data centres.

The terms of the purchase, which includes CCC's intellectual property and inventory, were not disclosed.

Raritan intends to help CCC's customers as they migrate, over time, to newer, more cost-effective technologies.

"Raritan is well positioned to assist CCC's customers, many of whom are also existing Raritan customers," said Dr. Ching-I Hsu, CEO of Raritan Computer. "Raritan provides scalable offerings that enable highly secure, real-time management of distributed corporate data centres and network operations centres from anywhere, anytime. This acquisition solidifies Raritan's leadership position in enterprise data centre management."
