APEX ELECTRICAL SOLUTIONS CHOOSES CHINT

Newcastle based Apex has boosted their range of 'first-by-choice' electrical products by taking on Chint in an agreement with UK distributor Rowe Hankins Components. Chint is a fast growing brand in the UK of quality miniature circuit breakers, consumer units, switchgear, push buttons and contactors. Apex is renowned for their total solutions approach - providing users of electrical products with design services, health and safety advice, quality components, and total supply management.

Established for 20 years, Apex has built an enviable reputation with electrical contractors and wholesalers. Apex commercial director Steve Bianchi, explained, "Apex has always been much more than a traditional wholesaler, we aim to source the 'best answer' products for our clients. With over 2000 lines we offer solutions that can save costs, installation time, energy use and more, but without compromising quality. Combined with our know-how, the Chint range gives our clients an even greater range of solutions."

Commenting on the agreement, Rowe Hankins' managing director, Toni Hankins, said, "Apex taking on Chint is another significant endorsement for the brand. Apex's client list is a real who's who - including PFI's, design and build contractors and major end users - all demanding quality solutions of which Chint will now be a vital component."
