Datawatch recently commissioned an independent review of Monarch Pro 7, a unique and easy-to-use data access and analysis software tool. Tested by Steve Gold, a leading authority on communications and IT security, Gold has launched and edited several UK trade publications, including Telelink and PC Dealer and has co-authored several books - The Hacker's Handbook, The Good Software Guide and The Good Hardware Guide.

Monarch provides organisations with a fast, convenient way of exploiting corporate information enabling them to perfect their business process management without investing in expensive new technology, by combining and mining totally separate databases to produce seamless reports.

Robert Graham, Datawatch Product Manager comments "We know our product range delivers around the globe with around 500,000 users. That is why we are happy to offer a no quibble 30 day return guarantee. It is a natural extension of this confidence in Monarch that we should commission an independent article from a well known industry journalist. We are delighted with his 'warts and all approach' which will attract new members to the Datawatch family of customers".
