TOWER Software today announced that Microsoft has chosen the company to be a participating partner for the Government Leaders Forums in Prague, Singapore and Redmond. The Forums will include presentations by government representatives who understand the vital role technology plays in making and keeping governments organized and productive while addressing the needs of their citizens. The Forums will be led by customers who will have the opportunity to exchange best practices with attendees on how to use Information and Communications Technologies to enable the implementation of their objectives. The forum will be attended by senior government ministers responsible for information and communications technology portfolios, and other business decision makers who are designing and implementing innovative e-government solutions and policies.

'To be recognized by Microsoft as a significant partner in the government sector is extremely pleasing for TOWER Software and we are very excited about participating over the next 9 months. With our combined technologies for the management of vital information in government organizations we are providing innovative solutions that can contribute to a change in the way government works and operates. This has been acknowledged by a recent International award bestowed upon TOWER Software by UK Trade and Investment,' said Michael Cliff, General Manager Marketing.

With TRIM Context government organizations are seamlessly linking with Microsoft authoring tools and databases to ensure their vital information is captured and re-used according to appropriate business constructs. Some government agencies that have deployed TRIM Context include Department of Trade and Industry (UK), Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (USA), Department of Defence (South Africa), Department of Veteran Affairs (Australia) and the National Maritime Museum (UK).
