

Novelty walkie-talkies for practical fun from Doro

Submitted by: Rawlingson Lane Publicity

Wednesday, 2 March 2005

PRACTICAL FUN FOR THE SERIOUS ADVENTURER FROM DORO PHONES

Swedish telephone manufacturer, Doro, has used its wealth of communications experience to design a multi-use walkie-talkie specifically for the specialist needs of the outdoor adventurer.

The Doro PMR range is built as an exceptionally rugged quality essential but designed as a stylish accessory ensuring that these compact, hand held devices are sure to be a 'must have' on any expedition.

Offering all the value of a cheaper communications option for those embarking on any outdoor activity, the Doro PMR 510 (button controlled) and the Doro PMR 512 (voice controlled), 8 channel walkie-talkies cover an impressive 3km range.

Also ideal for keeping track of children or groups whilst outdoors, the Doro PMR range is virtually indestructible and enables a great fun means of maintaining multi-way communications over a single channel, with family and friends, which does not interfere or block VHF channels.

For added versatility, the Doro PMR range comes with a host of useful accessories including a charger for both handsets, rechargeable batteries, two protective covers and belt clip together with a mains power supply lead.

All Doro communications devices are issued with an industry-unique 3 year warrantee. For further information on the Doro PMR range and its availability, visit www.Doro.com or telephone 01527 583800.

-ends-

For further information, images or product loans, please contact Teresa Dadey on 01672 564099 or email at teresa@rlpltd.co.uk