Talk3G.co.uk is a new UK forum to discuss third generation mobile communications. It aims to be the country's premier resource for 3G customers, retailers, networks and manufacturers.

The project has been privately funded, is voluntary and free from commercial sponsorship and advertising. This means members don't have to put up with annoying banners, adverts or be influenced by any commercial agenda.

Ben Fitter, the organisation chairman, said "The Talk3G.co.uk forum has been established to provide an independent easy to use resource where 3G technology products and services can be discussed freely by all who register".

"3G is exploding into the marketplace, with some very attractive handsets coming out this year. This will bring consumers to 3G who have many questions about the technology, in turn generating a huge customer services burden on all those involved in the supply chain" Mr. Fitter commented. "Websites and discussion forums that do exist tend to carry advertising or have attached storefronts, making them unattractive for retailers, networks and manufacturers to recommend".

Talk3g.co.uk is fortunate to launch with a user base of enthusiasts and industry professionals. The admin team are confident that they will be able to offer sound advice to consumers from the outset, assisting both existing and potential 3G customers in choosing products and getting the most benefit from them to suit their individual needs.

It is hoped that 3G vendors will recommend the site to customers to enrich their 3G experience by introducing them to a wealth of information and resources.

The new website is accessible via <http://www.talk3g.co.uk> and <http://www.talk3g.org> – registration is free and bound by a strict policy that no user data is exchanged with any third party companies or organisations.
