A recent survey undertaken by sextoys.co.uk shows that sex toys come top of the table when it comes to achieving the good old-fashioned orgasm.

The research revealed that out of the average 5 times a month that their female customers are having sex, they are only orgasming on average once a month, where as when a sex toy is used, an orgasm is had almost every time!

Females aged 55+ are the age group having the least orgasms overall with the 35-44 age group having the most - coincidentally they are also the age group using sex toys most frequently.

The research also shows that almost all women surveyed have faked an orgasm, with a shocking result that on average 10% of men have faked also.

Sextoys.co.uk customers also revealed that the sex toy most likely to get them going was The Rabbit vibrator, made famous by the TV series Sex in the City.
