Bright new fabric from Cosiflor Pleated Blinds

Whether to cheer Winter up or welcome Spring and Summer, strong, bright colours are the order of the day from Cosiflor Pleated Blinds.

The earthy shades we are so used give way to light colours. Cosiflor, the leading pleated blind fabric company has introduced its latest fabric – Carre. Also launched in 2006 will be a new catalogue outlining the new collections. 30% of the fabrics are new and there will be considerably more pearlised finishes.

The new fabric is a fresh bright print in 100% polyester and in widths of 230cm. Light and modern in character; Carre will fit comfortably into any room in the house. Pleated blinds have often been thought of as 'conservatory blinds' but following their success in that expanding market sector, they are now accepted as the new stylish look at every window from kitchens and bathrooms, through to bedrooms and living rooms. The flexibility and inherent strength of a pleated blind makes them particularly suitable for use in shaped windows or bays.

Carre's pattern is in the form of groups of random small squares printed onto a coloured semi-transparent fabric. Four colour ways are available: shades of green on a pale green background; reds and yellows on pale yellow; delightful pastel rose and sky blue on cream and oranges and greys on cream, which reflects the latest trends in interior design.
