Reallymoving (<http://www.reallymoving.com>), the leading online quoting website for domestic removals, conveyancing and chartered surveyors, has launched a new international removals service.

Individuals looking to relocate can log into reallymoving.com and specify details of their move; to or from anywhere in the world and reallymoving.com will be able to provide details of quality, regulated companies who can organise the move for the client. Rather than phoning each company individually, Reallymoving's clever system will contact international removals firms based in the UK, who can organise your move on your chosen route. This should save reallymoving visitors time and money and ensures they only contact firms who cover the route of their choice.

This new service launched by reallymoving.com has cost thousands of pounds to develop and is unique in its structure and online management. The international removals page has been developed with several of the country's lead international removals firms. This means the resultant quoting form takes into account the needs of the mover as well as the removals company.

Reallymoving.com's panel of international removals firms can cater for moves of any size. Users have the option of choosing routes via air, or sea, or the most convenient and therefore cheapest route used by the individual removals firms. Overseas company moves can also be organised via reallymoving.com's panel of international removalists.

The reallymoving system enables the user to find excellent low rates and enjoy peace of mind knowing that your furniture and valuables are being transferred safely overseas. The removals partners used are some of the most reputable and reliable in the business.

Reallymoving.com has taken the time to produce a working tool that is easy for users to use, selecting the country as well as part of the UK they are moving to or from. The information the users enter on one simple form provides sufficient information for a quality response to be made from the international removals firm, and from which a comprehensive quotation can be provided.

The international removals firms have the facility to log into reallymoving.com with their dedicated passwords and ID's to view their enquiries online, to ensure the smoothest of communication between user and removals firm.

Rosemary Rogers, Marketing Manager of reallymoving.com said "over the past 7 years we have developed a highly efficient and professional leads generating service for domestic removals, conveyancing solicitors and property surveys. This new international removals service was launched at the beginning of May 2006 and is already flying."

Editorial notes:

Reallymoving.com was launched in 1999 and is independently financed. The main office is in St Albans, Hertfordshire.

The company offers a free service that provides instant quotes from conveyancing solicitors (<http://www.reallymoving.com/mqe2/singlestep/conveyancing.pl>), chartered surveyors (<http://www.reallymoving.com/mqe2/singlestep/surveying.pl>) and home removal companies (<http://www.reallymoving.com/mqe2/singlestep/removals.pl>). Over 30,000 individuals register with the site each month, searching for domestic removals firms, office or international removals firms, conveyancing solicitors and chartered surveyors.
