In view of the little information available on Internet about Russian oil and gas equipment and services market, a new site <http://www.oil-gas.biz> has been launched under the support of the Russian Association of Oil and Gas Equipment Producers. The site provides with a daily updated news feed about Russian oil and gas equipment and services market and contains a full list of Russian companies engaged in oil and gas equipment manufacturing and/or rendering oil and gas services.

The list is mainly meant for foreign companies that wish to work in the Russian market. It contains general information about Russian contractors that can be used for preliminary estimate of their potential. This information includes a short story of the company's development, working experience, availability of service centers and certificates, info about performed projects, customer feedbacks and testimonials, and other data arranged in unitized formats suitable for studying.

To assist international companies in searching for partners in Russia, it was created a Petroleum and Gas Chemistry Suppliers Register. Its overseas counterpart is the well-known database of oil and gas industry suppliers First Point Assessment (FPAL) that has been adapted specifically for Russia. The Register offers helpful information on contractors and enables to enhance market transparency and promote the interests of trustworthy equipment suppliers.

At present, Oil-Gas.Biz is the only online resource in Russia that daily posts English-language news about Russian oil & gas equipment and services market. The news feed is useful especially for foreign companies, since it covers many topics and has exclusive materials from inside of the Russia's energy industry.
