50-Story Luxury Resort Chooses InterReach Fusion to Deliver High-Performance Wireless Services for Guests and Staff

April 29, 2008 – ADC (www.adc.com) (<http://www.adc.com>) today announced that The Palazzo Las Vegas, a new, luxury resort built adjacent to The Venetian, has deployed ADC's InterReach Fusion® in-building wireless system to deliver world-class mobile wireless coverage for guests and staff throughout its facility. The 50-story, $1.9 billion Palazzo Las Vegas includes more than 3,000 premium suites, more than 60 luxury boutiques, and world-class dining and entertainment. The property's grand opening was held on January 18, 2008.

ADC's InterReach Fusion system will also provide coverage for The Venetian/Palazzo Congress Center, a 5-floor, 1.1 million square-foot conference and ballroom facility that connects to The Sands Expo and Convention Center, The Venetian, and The Palazzo.

The InterReach Fusion systems in The Palazzo and The Venetian/Palazzo Congress Center will deliver services for AT&T Mobility, Verizon, and Sprint-Nextel. In The Palazzo, each carrier's InterReach Fusion system includes 8 Main Hubs, 29 Expansion Hubs, and 154 remote antenna units.

"Our InterReach products' unrivaled performance and our integrity as a supplier have made ADC the primary supplier of in-building wireless systems in Las Vegas as well as in other major resorts throughout the world," said John Spindler, vice president of product management for ADC. "With this new deployment at The Palazzo, we have a new crown jewel in Las Vegas as well as an even stronger position as the hospitality market's in-building wireless leader."
