A comprehensive study by the IT Recruitment (<http://www.cvscreen.co.uk>) specialist CV Screen has found that Permanent IT Salaries (<http://www.cvscreen.co.uk/freesalary.html>) in the UK have risen by 4.1% over the last 12 months.

The in depth analysis of the IT Jobs (<http://itjobs.cvscreen.co.uk>) market which monitored over 11,000 advertised positions in the UK during Q1 2008 has concluded that the average advertised salary for an IT professional in the UK is now £34,217.

CV Screen's Matthew Iveson commented "The continued high demand for IT professionals has continued to put upward pressure on IT Salaries."

"There are certain technical skills where there is still a considerable war for talent with candidates with strong skills in areas such as .Net, C# and PHP inundated with opportunities" continued Iveson.

With regards to the outlook for salaries in 2008, Iveson commented "The IT Jobs (<http://itjobs.cvscreen.co.uk>) market is holding up well in spite of the wider economic problems. It is likely that as a result of the rising costs of living in the UK that more candidates will seek to move for financial reasons, thus putting further upward pressure on IT salaries."
