London, 10 June 2008. PX Software UK, one of the UK's fastest growing software distributors has added BitDefender antivirus software and data security solutions to its product portfolio. This new partnership, negotiated through Security IP, www.securityip.com reinforces PX Software's position as an ambitious and progressive company on the cutting-edge of the global software market.

PX Software UK is a software re-publishing and distribution house established just over a year ago. In this short time, PX has expanded from South Africa and Zambia to have offices in the United Kingdom and Germany – as well as affiliate partners in South East Asia and the US. The company's strength lies in its ability to offer good margins and a value-added service to its channel partners, while offering its vendors a total solution for 'in-country' representation via physical and ESD Distribution.

"Following its mantra of continuous improvement and innovation, PX Software has recognised BitDefender as a fundamental part of any state-of-the-art computer security system." Stated Anton Vukic, Channel Director of PX Software. 'Cyber crime' is on the rise and BitDefender is a market leader in data protection. We are pleased to have BitDefender as one of our partners", he continued.

BitDefender® products are available across platforms—Windows, Linux, or FreeBSD. The company is committed to providing seamless integration and outstanding technical support. The developers continue to create robust technology and super fast reaction time to new viruses thus ensuring that all their worldwide users – both corporate and home, can absolutely rely on BitDefender.
