A NEW online marketplace...perfectly timed for Christmas.

For those in search of the unique, the unusual, and the highly desirable... chances are you'll find it on www.thetravellingsouk.com, a new online marketplace, selling a multitude of the finest and exotic goods sourced from hundreds of stallholders from all four corners of the globe.

Boasting a host of eclectic and diverse products which includes fragrant soaps and candles, beautifully designed shoes, exotic food and delicacies, hand-made children's clothing, ipod accessories, fair-trade products and delicate bedspreads, as well as kaftans, poufs and gourmet products for your larder, the new website brings together all those unique hard-to find treasures in one online marketplace.

The choice is breathtaking, the prices honourable, and most importantly for the ever-increasing socially-conscious shopper, a percentage of anything bought online will be donated to charity: Leonard Cheshire Disability and Breast Cancer Haven will be the first charities to benefit.

The Travelling Souk was first set up in 2003 by Georgiana Grimston and Anna Craven. Inspired by a trip to the markets and souks of Marrakesh, Georgiana realised that there was an opportunity to bring together small businesses selling unique and exotic wares. Thus the Travelling Souk was born, and has progressed from small atmospheric charity fairs, or souks, in London drawing rooms and the grand manors of the English countryside, to this new online marketplace <http://www.thetravellingsouk.com>. The new website upholds their dedication to bringing together only the finest speciality goods from carefully selected stallholders, plus a commitment to charity - to date The Travelling Souk have raised well over £200,000 for various charities.

Head of the new online offering, Claire Simpson says "The Travelling Souk have collected almost 500 stallholders over the years and for the first time thetravellingsouk.com allows all these niche products to be seen and bought in one enormous online marketplace."
