NEW PRODUCT PROMISES RESTFUL NIGHTS FOR THOUSANDS OF SNORERS

A UK company has launched a unique new product designed to offer relief to thousands of people who suffer from a particular type of snoring (<http://www.adkinssnoringaid.com/custom/howdoesitwork.aspx>)

The Adkins snoring aid (<http://www.adkinssnoringaid.com>) is targeted at “nose snorers” and uses a totally new method which restricts the air flow through the nose.

The product is made of a medical grade soft plastic, consists of a pair of conjoined non latex balls which the user inserts into the nostrils before going to sleep.

Before this discovery, the main school of thought in snoring treatments has been to open up the airway through the nostrils.

Sleep deprivation expert Chris Grant is the man behind the new product. He explained how it works: “The restricted airflow through the nose encourages mouth breathing which reduces the incidence of snoring in those whose snoring is caused by excess airflow across the soft tissues at the back of the nose.”

Designed and produced in the UK, the new product has been successfully tested by many snorers to date and has been endorsed by many users including a medical doctor.

Dr David Collinge of Oxford confirms that the Adkins snoring aid worked for his wife. He said, “She calls the Adkins snoring aid the “miracle balls” and I must agree. This new product has stopped her snoring, when everything else had failed.”

Former Royal Protection Officer Les Blyth, says, “I had nothing to lose and everything to gain. This new product stopped my snoring and I now sleep soundly with my wife in the same bedroom. It is a brilliant idea, being both comfortable and simple to use.”

Amy Harrington from Essex says, “We never imagined that this new innovation would alleviate snoring to such an extent. Now that we sleep well, we even feel and look better too.”

Tony Jones from London “My partner suggested I try this new product, and I was happy to give it a try especially if it gave me the opportunity to save my relationship. The Adkins snoring aid certainly stopped my snoring.”

Chris Grant added, “Anyone who needs help to stop snoring should try this simple test. Get your partner to gently pinch your nose when you are snoring. If the snoring stops then you're a "nose snorer".

The Adkins snoring aid could be the solution you've been waiting for."
