

Morgan Lovell Project Wins Green Business Award

Submitted by: Shepherd PR

Monday, 17 November 2008

Office interior design (<http://www.morganlovell.co.uk/our-services/office-interior-design>), refurbishment (<http://www.morganlovell.co.uk/our-services/office-refurbishment>) and relocation (<http://www.morganlovell.co.uk/our-services/office-relocation>) specialist Morgan Lovell picked up a highly commended accolade in the Green Business Awards, in the 'Best Construction or Property Business category.'

Their blueprint for a sustainable workplace (<http://www.morganlovell.co.uk/sustainability/sustainable-workplace-services>) of the future was given the green light at the awards event, which celebrated the cream of sustainable initiatives across the UK.

Morgan Lovell fought off stiff competition, with almost 130 entries received, across 11 categories.

The office transformation specialist (<http://www.morganlovell.co.uk/>) received the accolade for its work to create a green workplace at its own London headquarters, located in Noel Street, Soho, which served as a testing ground for its capabilities in retro-fitting old buildings.

Developed in the unlikely setting of a 1960s block – the office was in the type of building that would normally be considered an environmental write-off.

Earlier this year, the sustainable workplace achieved the highest BREEAM (<http://www.morganlovell.co.uk/sustainability/sustainable-workplace-services/breeam-offices-assessment>) fit out environmental assessment score to date in the UK, and as a result received an award from the Building Research Establishment (BRE).

David Henderson, managing director of Morgan Lovell, said: "Judges from the Green Business Awards said they felt the project was valuable because it shows how Britain's vast problem of inefficient existing buildings can be tackled."

The Noel Street project has also been shortlisted in the PFM Awards and Building magazine's 99% Campaign for Refurbishment, developed to find the best examples in the UK of carbon being cut in existing buildings.

Find out more about green office interiors at www.morganlovell.co.uk/sustainability

ENDS

About Morgan Lovell

Located in London, Birmingham and the Thames Valley, Morgan Lovell is the UK's leading office interior design, fit out and refurbishment specialist. With its own teams of designers, surveyors and project managers, the company can design and deliver entire projects, with the benefit of just one point of contact. www.morganlovell.co.uk

It is part of Morgan Sindall plc, a top UK construction and regeneration group which operates through five specialist divisions of fit out, construction, infrastructure services, affordable housing and urban regeneration.

Morgan Lovell is a licensed BREEAM Offices Assessment Organisation. This means it is now licensed to measure the sustainability score of an office in order to identify ways companies can reduce high energy usage and waste, whilst increasing comfort and satisfaction for users of the building.

Contact Jane Shepherd or Jo Foster, Shepherd PR Limited. Tel 01538 308685/308099. Mobile 07985 129315, jane@shepherd-pr.com, jo@shepherd-pr.com

