Priceless balls to be won on YouTube video competition

A unique and highly valuable prize is being offered to UK fans of 'skills based games'. Alex Hochstrasser the designer of Astrojax has created a unique and priceless metallic Astrojax which is being offered as the top prize in a competition launched today in the UK.

Astrojax has 1000's of fans, many of them have posted videos of their Astrojax tricks on the youtube website. Now Astrojax fans can post their videos at a new site www.myastrojax.com. All videos posted will be entered into the competition to win an exclusive and priceless Astrojax along with one of 10 Astrojax goody bags.

Astrojax is a skills based toy which combines the creativity of juggling balls and the precision of a yo yo to create a unique and fascinating toy. The three balls on a piece of fun enable the 'player' to create endless tricks and is both fun to watch and play.

Phil Jones of Wind Designs the UK distributors of Astrojax said " It's fantastic that we are able to offer such a unique prize in the UK when normally such prizes are offered to fans state side. Astrojax has proved a big hit with people of both sexes and of all ages. Whether you are trying to master the basic tricks or are an expert creating your own tricks the fun is never ending. With the basic Astrojax retailing for less than £7 it is a fun toy that all the family can try out."

Why not challenge your family to the Astrojax this Christmas and have fun attempting to tame the Astrojax and you never know posting a video of your Astrojax trick could land you with one of the most converted prizes around.
