Injury compensation advice company Accident Advice Helpline has launched its new website detailing how prospective claimants could win compensation for their personal injuries.

The new website intends to make clear the intention of Accident Advice Helpline (<http://www.accidentadvicehelpline.co.uk/>) to assist people with genuine claims discover what compensation they may be entitled to and includes information on the compensation claim process, how to claim online, a FAQ section and company news.

Accident Advice Helpline's updated site also includes case studies, a 30 second "how much is your claim worth?" calculator and information about different types of injury compensation (<http://www.accidentadvicehelpline.co.uk/compensation/>) claims that can be made.

Prospective claimants are invited to visit the new website to read about what is available to them, but Accident Advice Helpline also encourages victims of personal injuries to phone them on a 24 hour free helpline offering legal advice.

From its new website, Accident Advice Helpline offers a no-win no-fee service to clients who have experienced a personal injury through no fault of their own. From traffic accidents (http://www.accidentadvicehelpline.co.uk/road_traffic_claims/) to work accidents (http://www.accidentadvicehelpline.co.uk/work_accidents/), Accident Advice Helpline can help victims of personal injury gain compensation. The injury compensation expert specialises in hassle free online and offline service, with no forms to fill.

For those who have suffered accidents at work, road incidents or other accidents, Accident Advice Helpline can provide round the clock assistance and advice - all free of charge on its legal advice helpline.

About Accident Advice Helpline

Accident Advice Helpline was established in 2000 following the removal of legal aid to accident victims with personal injury cases. The company was founded to provide access to justice for accident victims and, since its creation, has helped thousands of people claim compensation against the responsible parties.

The injury compensation specialist is the UK's leading company of its kind and prides itself on quick and effective claims processing with high quality service and an admirable success rate. The level of customer satisfaction Accident Advice Helpline is known for is characterised by television star Esther Rantzen's continued support for the company, which she has steadily provided since 2003.
