

COOKING UP COLOUR!

Submitted by: Parlour Farm

Thursday, 19 February 2009

News...news...news...news...news...news...news...news...news...news...news...news

Cooking Up Colour

Parlour Farm, a leading bespoke kitchen company, has just launched a stunning range of paints, engineered specifically to cope with the exceptional hard wear and tear that kitchen furniture endures.

Having been successfully designing and installing some 180 bespoke hand-painted kitchens per year for more than a decade, Parlour Farm understands that not just the structure of the cabinetry, but also the paint used, needs to be robust and resilient. This new paint range encompasses exceptionally high levels of durability, with a collection of 24 colours that can work in any setting, traditional or state of the art contemporary.

Shades vary from whites and creams, through blues, greys and greens, to deep blood red, including Chalk, Lamp White, French Green, Mint, Blue Moon, Lamp Grey, and Vermillion.

In these 'credit crunch' times, when many are struggling to stay afloat, Parlour Farm is continuing to invest in new design innovation, and is also about to launch one of the largest collections of stone flooring available.

Parlour Farm is always happy to provide product loans, good quality photography, industry quotes on trends and all aspects of kitchens and bespoke furniture, and case studies of installations.

Contact Joanna Welch on: 01367 710164 / 07767 416092 / mrsjowelch@aol.com with any requests or queries.