

NORLAND LAUNCHES SAFEcontractor ACCREDITATION SCHEME

Submitted by: Norland Managed Services Ltd

Monday, 2 March 2009

Norland Managed Services has launched a scheme whereby our sub-contractors' health and safety processes are assessed by a third party, Connaught Compliance, to make sure that they adequately manage the risks of working at our client sites.

It is our objective to provide clients with exceptional service and complete peace of mind. It is to this end that Norland will only work with suppliers that achieve SAFEcontractor accreditation.

On completion of an assessment, sub-contractors gain SAFEcontractor accreditation and are added to a national database which in turn will help them win business with other companies who are seeking sub-contractors.

Many of our sub-contractors already have the accreditation and we expect a further 900 will be going through the process by the end of March 2009. We will cease to work with any sub-contractors that do not achieve accreditation.

"This is a good step forward for Norland Managed Services in our aim to provide clients with exceptional service through our suppliers as it assures them that the sub-contractors we use are committed to working with good health and safety practices" said Rachel Lee, Procurement Director.

Norland itself achieved SAFEcontractor accreditation in 2007.
