Inclarity announces launch of new conference service

Inclarity today announced the launch of its new carrier grade conference bridge service. Enzo Viscito sales director commented. This brings a new dimension to the hosted conferencing world. Not only does it offer a scalable, resilient service the new tariff regime has been designed to turn the way bridges are charged for on its head. No longer do you have to pay for inflated access call charges.

Inclarity has undertaken extensive research in the UK market has listened to it's many customer and partners. With this in mind the new tariff regime chosen is innovative and delivers real cost savings to inclarity users. All calls to and from the conference bridge are free while on the Inclarity network. Off net callers are charged a standard rate.
