The Alli weight loss aid is in hot demand thanks to media stories talking about its launch in the UK and today sees the launch of a new site aimed at helping those looking for Alli get the best price possible.

Today sees the launch of a new site aimed at helping people looking for Alli Weight Loss Aid tablets (<http://www.alli-diet-pills.co.uk/>) find which shops still have stocks of the product and which sells it for the lowest price.

With media interest in the weight loss aid Alli growing and despite the product only being available to pre-order in many big name stores, shops in the UK are already rapidly running out of stocks. www.alli-diet-pills.co.uk (<http://www.alli-diet-pills.co.uk/>) helps those looking for a weight loss aid to find the retailer with the lowest Alli prices and only shows retailers who still have the products in stock.

www.Alli-diet-pills.co.uk has drawn up a list of all the major stockists of Alli, including Boots and Chemist Direct in order to ensure consumers can continue to find one of the UK's most talked about new products of 2009.

Speaking about the launch of the new site, Peter Williams said,

"The media speculation about the launch of Alli Weight Loss Aid (<http://www.alli-diet-pills.co.uk/>) has meant that there is a staggering level of demand for the product and we have already seen retailers running low on stocks, even on a pre-order basis".

"Our site only shows retailers where the product is still in stock, and only shows those who are charging the recommended retail price or below".
