Office refurbishment (<http://www.morganlovell.co.uk/our-services/office-refurbishment/>) specialists Morgan Lovell (<http://www.morganlovell.co.uk/>) has organised a free breakfast seminar, aimed at supporting businesses looking to achieve a new workplace, without the need to relocate.

'Refurbishment: A New Office Without The Cost of Relocation' takes place at Morgan Lovell's London headquarters, located in Noel Street, Soho.

Starting at 8:30 am, the two hour seminar takes place on Wednesday, May 6. Complimentary breakfast is included. Registration is free, but places are limited. To register go to www.morganlovell.co.uk/events/ or call 01462 490609.

David Cannon, managing director (<http://www.morganlovell.co.uk/about-us/management-team/>) of Morgan Lovell's London office, will cover the refurbishment of existing premises - including how to achieve a successful fit out (<http://www.morganlovell.co.uk/our-services/office-fit-out/>) whilst an office is occupied - as well as information on financial aspects and effective design (<http://www.morganlovell.co.uk/our-services/office-interior-design/>) techniques.

David said: "In the current climate, the most cost-effective way for companies to get a new office is to stay where they are.

"In these tough times, landlords are offering huge incentives for staying put. This, added to the savings that can be made refurbishing rather than relocating, means a new office is a lot more affordable."

At the seminar, the line-up of expert speakers also includes Ben Glickman, of Knight Frank - along with the Head of Central London Tenant Representation, Bradley Barker - who will together talk about negotiating with landlords to get the best deals in the current economic climate.

Finally, Keren Shaw, project manager of LV=, one of the UK's largest friendly societies, will give an insight into LV='s current office refurbishment (<http://www.morganlovell.co.uk/our-services/office-refurbishment/>) project.
