Widely regarded as one of the most glamorous cities in the world, London is due to play host to a glittering display of opulent jewellery in just a few short weeks.

The English capital is set to provide a stunning backdrop to the award-winning Coutts London Jewellery Week between June 8th and 14th.

A wide array of big-name designers, such as Shaun Leane and Stephen Webster - who have has their work worn by celebrities including David Bowie, Liv Tyler and Christina Aguilera - will showcase pieces at the celebration.

They will be joined by a variety of up-and-coming jewellers, like Assya and Amanda Brighton.

"Find out more about London's unique connection with the jewellery trade which dates back over a thousand years. Join the world's foremost jewellery institution, the Goldsmiths' Company, for their Day of Knowledge, or visit a jewellery-making class to create your own piece," the organisers state.

A wide range of events, workshops and exhibitions will take place to mark the occasion, meaning that those staying in London hotels (http://www.laterooms.com/en/k16295585\_london-hotels.aspx) over the course of the symposium should have no trouble getting involved in the action.

These include a showcase by Ivan Dvorak outside his shop in Hatton, as well as the launch of Leblas' first store on Sloane Street.
