The Health & Safety team at Workplace Law (<http://www.workplacelaw.net>) is delighted to report that results for candidates taking the NEBOSH General Certificate (<http://www.workplacelaw.net>) course in March were excellent, with overall results comprising eight passes, 22 credits and ten distinctions.

Assessment for the NEBOSH General Certificate (<http://www.workplacelaw.net>) is by an end-of-course examination comprising two written papers – NGC1 (The management of safety and health) and NGC2 (Controlling workplace hazards) – and a practical assessment (NGC3), which consists of carrying out a health and safety (<http://www.workplacelaw.net>) inspection of a workplace and preparing a management report.

Delegates in March's cohort achieved 84% for the NGC1 paper, an outstanding 98% for the NGC2 paper and 98% on the NGC3 paper.

Commented Becky Joel, Training and Consulting Manager for Workplace Law Group:

"The results are excellent – the best we have seen for a while – and it's all thanks to the dedication of both our expert tutors and hardworking candidates."

Workplace Law Training's flexible approach to this popular course has seen us double the amount of students who have studied the NEBOSH General Certificate with us in the past 12 months as well as increasing our pass rate in the same period.

We always receive positive feedback from our students about the NEBOSH certificate course and comments include...

"Overall I was very impressed with the quality of Workplace Law's accredited NEBOSH course. The tutors were very knowledgeable, approachable and gave valuable feedback throughout the course. I was also very impressed with the venue and the level of service I received.

"A very positive experience which I would recommend to others."

Tricia Shirley, Chelmsford Essex County

"The full marks I have given the course, tutors, venue, and experience as a whole are a genuine reflection of the service provided by Workplace Law and not a lazy ticking of the boxes! I honestly couldn't fault it if I tried. This is my second time with Workplace Law and I would definitely train with them again and recommend to others."

Laura Cook, Health and Safety, Trinity College, Cambridge

"Trainers were very knowledgeable in their field and were all easy to approach."

Sarah Chawda, ISS Coflex
