When many people think of puppets, Punch and Judy shows on a seaside in Blackpool may be of the first things that spring to mind.

However, there is one annual event that takes place in Spain which could change the way people staying at accommodation in Seville (http://www.laterooms.com/en/k15807305_seville-hotels.aspx) view the traditional art form.

The Seville International Puppet Festival, also known as the Feria Internacional del títere de Sevilla, is held in May and is a spectacle for adults as well as children to enjoy.

Holidaymakers should banish all thoughts of a tiny booth on a windswept beach with kids patiently gathered around to watch the arguments between the quarrelsome Punch and Judy.

Instead, they will be able to enjoy performances from some of the best national and international companies at a selection of theatres across the city, What's on When reports.

This may be the perfect way for adults to forget about their worries and enjoy an afternoon of behaving like a child again as they laugh along to the sketches.

If eager theatre-goers want to take in a few more shows during their time in Seville, they have a variety of excellent establishments to choose from.

These include Teatro Lope de Vega, Teatro Central and Teatrol de la Maestranza, which is the city's premier venue.

To make the most of the International Puppet Festival, you should consider booking your hoteles en Sevilla (http://www.laterooms.com/es/k15807305_hoteles-sevilla.aspx) to avoid disappointment.
