Music lovers staying in Florence hotels (http://www.laterooms.com/en/k13645939_florence-hotels.aspx) next month may like to visit the nearby city of Lucca to see Crosby, Stills and Nash perform.

The legendary trio are set to play at the Piazza Napoleone on Sunday July 18th, giving Italian fans a chance to hear their masterful harmonies and famous hits live.

Originally formed during the late 1960s, Crosby, Stills and Nash are a folk rock supergroup occasionally joined by fourth member Neil Young.

Known for their intricate vocal interplay and political activism, the three key members - David Crosby, Stephen Stills and Graham Nash - have had a lasting influence on many bands around their world.

The group was formed after its various members stopped recording with other famous bands of the 1960s, such as The Byrds, The Hollies and Buffalo Springfield.

People heading to their Lucca performance can extend to hear renditions of hits such as Judy Blue Eyes, Marrakesh Express, Helplessly Hoping and Our House.

The date is part of a wider European tour that also includes gigs in Belgium, France, Germany, Ireland and the UK, where they will play at London's Royal Albert Hall.

Tickets for the concert in Lucca are available online, priced between €40.25 and €57.50 (£33.15 and £47.35).

If you're heading to the Crosby, Stills and Nash concert this year, we strongly advise that you book your hotel Firenze (http://www.laterooms.com/it/k13645939_hotel-firenze.aspx) as soon as possible, given the huge popularity of the event.
