Anyone who is considering a spot of DIY can draw inspiration during their stay at hotels in Shanghai (<http://www.asiarooms.com/china/shanghai.html>) by heading to the International Gift and Home Decor Trade Fair.

The event, which runs between August 5th and 8th 2010 at the Shanghai Mart Exhibition Hall, is now in its fourth year and could be the perfect place for people to visit if they are mulling over a few of their own household improvements.

Organised in part by China's Chamber of Commerce, the four-day show will feature a variety of products which would be sure to give any home a touch of oriental style, including metal ornaments, crystal and glass, ceramics and a range of electronic gifts.

Bedding products, kitchenware and sculptures will also be featured in some of the 1,000 booths which are expected to be set up at the trade fair.

People who head to the expo during their time at hotels in Shanghai (<http://www.asiarooms.com/china/shanghai.html>) should find they are in good company, as the organisers are predicting that 50,000 professional buyers and 30,000 visitors from overseas companies will also be attending.

Furthermore, around 170,000 regular shoppers are expected to flock to the exhibition centre over the course of the four days, many of whom will be hoping to pick up a few bargains and decorating ideas.

For more information on this event visit the International Gift and Home Decor Trade Fair website or contact the venue on +86-21-2325 5281.
