People staying in Seminyak hotels (<http://www.asiarooms.com/indonesia/seminyak.html>) at the start of August will have the opportunity to attend an event with a difference as the Asia Oceania Conference for Sexology comes to the island.

Set to take place between August 4th and 7th 2010, the annual summit will discuss a wide range of topics related to sexual health and moral issues, and is being sponsored by pharmaceutical giants Pfizer and Bayer.

A wide variety of talks will take place at the conference, which is celebrating its 11th anniversary this year. These will include a debate on lifestyle and sexual dysfunction, as well as adolescent sexuality and the varying behaviours and ethics which are witnessed across different cultures.

It will be staged near to the popular holiday resort of Kuta, which means attendees will be able to combine their time at the talks with trips to the town's shopping and entertainment centres.

Organisers of the talks have strongly advised that people who are planning to take in the meeting book in advance. Registration closes on July 31st and tickets cost $500 (£329) for the full programme.

With the conference set to be well attended, AsiaRooms recommends that anyone who is planning to stay on the island at the time should book their Seminyak hotels as soon as possible.

AsiaRooms.com features a range of Seminyak hotels, including the Sanur Beach Hotel (http://www.asiarooms.com/en/indonesia/bali/171941-sanur_beach-hotel-reviews.html).
