(<http://www.cvtravel.co.uk/en/destinations/europe/great-britain/norfolk--suffolk/ixworth/accommodation/pages/the-watermill.aspx>)

An existentially English water mill with a punt, canoe & bicycles

So existentially English, 'The Watermill' (sleeps 10) has even featured in an episode of Dad's Army (the DVD is available at the property) and guests could be forgiven for feeling that they have slipped between the pages of 'Wind in The Willows'. This archetypal, Grade II listed East Anglian watermill is set on an island on a mill pond by the River Blackborne in Ixworth, Suffolk, surrounded by three acres of idyllic gardens and orchards. It comes with a punt (and instruction book), a two-person canoe, and a selection of bicycles. The grounds are buzzing with wildlife. Kingfishers, ducks, moorhens and swans and otters can be spotted in the beautiful surroundings that offer walking, bird watching, wild swimming and fishing. A week's rental costs £1800 per week in May, £3000 per week in August.
