eView 3.5 Streamlines Workflow, Improves Project Visibility and Minimizes Risk

LONDON – April 19, 2011 – Integreon, the largest global provider of integrated research, legal and business solutions (<http://www.integreon.com>) to professionals, today announced eView 3.5, the latest release of its eView Document Review Platform (<http://www.integreon.com/technologies/discovery-technologies/eview.html>). eView 3.5 includes improved search analytics and workflow automation functionality that enable law firms and corporate legal departments to accelerate document review, gain increased visibility into review projects and minimize risk.

“Successful, efficient document review increasingly requires sophisticated workflow automation,” said David L. Stanton (<http://www.pillsburylaw.com/?pageID=15&itemID=21025>), a partner at Pillsbury Winthrop Shaw Pittman, LLP (<http://www.pillsburylaw.com/index.cfm?pageid=1>) recognized globally for his e-discovery practice. “The new eView increases the speed and accuracy of document review, with important project management tools that strengthen defensibility and improve results.”

Field-proven by many of the world’s largest law firms and corporate legal departments, eView is a flexible, easy-to-use document review platform that offers customizable workflows to streamline the review process for greater efficiency. The platform’s in-depth progress reports provide critical visibility, and its automated quality-control processes help manage risk and ensure accurate, defensible results. eView’s intuitive features improve reviewer efficiency and enable quick project setup with minimal training, and the platform provides hosted, on-demand scalability to handle hundreds of concurrent users and meet clients’ evolving case needs.

Key features of eView 3.5 include:

Unprecedented flexibility for workflow creation: eView 3.5 enables project leaders to easily design and customize their document review workflow, including automated quality-control and tag-propagation features that accelerate review execution.

Powerful new search analytics: An improved search engine enables users to conduct complex, analytic queries with greater ease while helping project leaders strategically eliminate irrelevant documents prior to review.

Improved ease of use: eView’s updated user interface enhances intuitive navigation, building on eView’s reputation for ease of use, and helping review projects to get up and running quickly with minimal training for reviewers.

Greater project visibility: eView 3.5 includes a wide array of reports that enable project leaders to maintain visibility into review progress as well as forecasting reports that help managers make informed decisions to keep projects on track for critical deadlines despite changes to review teams or evolving discovery needs.

Additional Capabilities:

Improved risk management with privilege log automation that helps litigation teams more efficiently and effectively manage their review process.

Multiple levels of encryption and a fully redundant co-location hosted by Integreon with automatic failover to ensure secure access, reliability and availability.

“Ease of use, flexible workflow, powerful analytics and reporting are all critical components for competitive review platforms,” said Vivian Tero (<http://www.idc.com/getdoc.jsp?containerId=PRF001783>), Program Director for IDC’s Governance, Risk & Compliance Infrastructure service. “Even the best technology platform, though, requires a well managed process. The expertise behind the platform is what can make the difference between success and failure.”

Development of eView has benefitted from close collaboration with Integreon’s skilled in-house managed review service team, which helped refine and battle-test the platform to best meet the needs of end users and project managers. In addition to its eView offering, Integreon uniquely offers a fully integrated managed document review service, enabling clients to efficiently meet litigation and compliance requirements while working with a single service provider. The document review team – with extensive operations in the U.S. and hundreds of lawyers both onshore and offshore – is one of the largest global review teams in the world, and is a trusted partner of leading law firms and corporate legal departments.

In addition, Integreon as an organization is certified compliant with the ISO/IEC 27001:2005 Certified Information Security and ISO 9001:2000 Certified Quality Management standards, and has certified Six Sigma Black Belt and Project Management Professional expertise. In 2010, Gartner analysts also named Integreon a Cool Vendor (<http://www.integreon.com/blog/2010/06/integreon-named-a-cool-vendor-in-business-process-services.html>) in Business Process Services.

“Some of the largest legal teams in the world rely on the eView hosted document review platform for secure, reliable and effective document review,” said Jeffrey Fehrman, vice president of forensics and consulting at Integreon. “We offer a unique combination of best-in-class technology, a knowledgeable workforce with domain expertise, and the certified processes necessary to deliver a comprehensive, integrated solution that can quickly meet the full scope of our clients’ evolving litigation and compliance needs.”
