Leading interior designers from across the length and breadth of the United Kingdom have been notified that they are shortlisted in the region's most prestigious property competition in association with Google and Bloomberg Television. Peldon Rose Workplace Consultants is delighted to learn that it is one of the finalists that may win a highly commended or five-star award.

The gala awards presentation will take place on October 28th at the London Lancaster Hotel near Hyde Park. The event is part of the International Property Awards, which is now in its 17th year and has become recognised as the highest standard of excellence throughout the global industry.

Attaining one of these coveted awards is evidence that Peldon Rose is capable of excelling over some very strong contenders within the highly competitive UK property arena. It is already an award-winner gaining a highly commended and a five-star award, last year for its work with the World Gold Council and Platina Partners.

Later this year, the highest scoring winners from the UK Property Awards will compete against other winning companies from Asia Pacific, Africa, Arabia, the Americas and Europe to determine the ultimate World's Best in each category.

The judging panel consists of more than 80 professionals whose collective knowledge of the property industry is unsurpassed by any other property awards. This year's judges include James Bacon, UK account manager of Google; Peter Bolton King, group chief executive of the National Federation of Property professionals; David Dalby of the Royal Institute of Chartered Surveyors (RICS); and Mike McNamara of the Royal Bank of Scotland (RBS).

Jitesh Patel, Chief Executive Officer, Peldon Rose Workplace Consultants, said of the award:

"This is great recognition again for the design team at Peldon Rose. Our people are creative, skilled and knowledgeable. We are all aware that to be successful, a company needs to have a motivational workplace that provides the best base possible to be competitive".
