The Pussy Co has launched a one of a kind car air freshener. The response has been absolutely amazing with national Channels wanting to feature it. They are scheduled to appear on E4's new series of Dirty Digest starting from this Thursday 10th November 2011. The viral promo video has taken the internet by storm where people are blogging and sharing it – The Pussyco (<http://thepussyco.com>).

They have a quirky feature called 'Where will you stick yours'. Users have been submitting some great pictures of where people have been sticking these pussy air fresheners. There are many pictures taken around London and a few that raise an eyebrow such as the queen holding a pussy! This seems to be spreading very quickly around the world and people are doing all sorts of funny things with them. There are some concerns about people trying to put these in inappropriate places.

Videos (<http://www.youtube.com/user/thepussyco>) are another feature that caught our attention. Along with the well produced videos by the company, they have kept it open to the public to create funny videos about the The Pussyco. Becoming the next model for the brand has also been introduced on the website. Potential amateur models to sexy women or even the ideal girl next door can apply to be a brand ambassador.

The Clitometer App is another great product that had us in stitches when we read what it was about! It's coming soon, but just the idea of someone rubbing to stimulate it made us giggle!

The best novelty gift for men or women at a price that doesn't break the bank. Please don't mistake this for an adult toy or anything to do with porn. The cheeky pants have been a huge success and have some clever slogans on there such as 'anal-yse this' or 'hungry?'

They're certainly not scared of bold messages or products, so make sure you visit the The Pussyco (<http://thepussyco.com>). Their blog seems to be quite active and have pages that offer advice, hot celebrity gossip, latest news and general posts.
