Active Risk (<http://activerisk.com>) (formerly Strategic Thought Group) today announced it will partner with Connexion Systems on project and enterprise implementations of its leading Active Risk Manager (<http://activerisk.com>) (ARM) risk management software.

Marcus Quartly, Active Risk's Head of Sales and Services for the Asia-Pac region said, "Our partnership with Connexion Systems recognizes the increasing interest in Active Risk Manager in Australia. ARM is being used to manage risk on complex projects and increasingly enterprise-wide in this risk aware and risk mature market. We are very pleased to be partnering with Connexion Systems to make experienced resources available for customer projects. The team will bring their implementation knowledge to organizations working on project, departmental, ERM (Enterprise Risk Management) and GRC (Governance, Risk and Compliance) programs."

Tony Scuteri, Professional Services Director at Connexion Systems commented, "We are pleased to be partnering with Active Risk. Our team has decades of experience in providing project-based solutions to government agencies and major corporations. Connexion Systems will bring additional enterprise systems implementation and support capability to the increasing number of ARM customers in Australia."

Active Risk's customers in the region include Abigroup, Amcor, Fortescue Metals, Leighton Contractors and Rio Tinto. To find out more about Active Risk and ARM customers visit www.activerisk.com.au.
