

Gingerlily's Silk Blankets and Throws in Delicate Pastels and Cool Metallics

Submitted by: Thinc PR (JBA Public Relations)

Monday, 28 May 2012

Gingerlily (<http://www.gingerlily.co.uk>), designers of the finest silk bedding and accessories (<http://www.gingerlily.co.uk>), has introduced a stunning new collection of blankets and throws. Echoing the current trend for pastels, the silk throws come in this season's must-have shades; dusty nude pink and delicate ivory. For a sleek, contemporary look, Gingerlily has also created a silk blanket in silver grey with coordinating silk edging.

Using the finest 'A' grade mulberry silk, Gingerlily's blankets and throws are lightweight, yet luxuriously soft. For a touch of seasonal style, both can be accessorised throughout the home. Silk works to regulate the body's temperature; perfect for hot nights when a duvet is not required, or providing additional warmth as the autumn nights draw in, making them perfect for use all year round.

Gingerlily's latest designs are available from retailers throughout the UK, including Harrods and Selfridges. To order, or for full stockist details, please visit www.gingerlily.co.uk or call 0843 216 9902.

ENDS

About Gingerlily (www.gingerlily.co.uk):

Gingerlily, designers of exquisite silk filled duvets, bedding and accessories for the ultimate night's sleep. Made from only the finest 'A' grade mulberry silk and designed in-house, Gingerlily products can help you to create the ultimate glamorous bedroom – a haven in which to retreat and be cocooned from the outside world.

Silk has many other health and beauty benefits. It is a naturally hypoallergenic fibre. The main cause of allergies is dust mites. Silk, however, is resistant to dust mites making it ideal for allergy sufferers.

As well as helping relieve allergy sufferers, silk has been recognised for its soothing properties and its ability to help prevent and aid the recovery of skin irritations, poor circulation, arthritis, asthma and night sweats.

Gingerlily's stunning range includes bed linen, bedding, cushions and nightwear as well as a range of bedding and accessories for children. These beautiful designs will not only transform your bedroom into a luxurious sanctuary but gives you the ultimate night's health and beauty sleep every night.

For further information:

For press enquiries, images or further information about Gingerlily please contact:

Huw Bussell or Charlotte Young at Thinc PR on 020 7801 6255 huw@thincpr.com / charlotte@thincpr.com