The Euro 2012 fever brings in heavy competition from the world's best bookmakers amongst which Bestbookmakers.net point out three top bookie websites.

With 10 years of knowledgeable experience in the field of sports betting, owner of BestBookmakers.net arrives at top three nonpareil bookmaker sites on the net. And these are not just his own view but also in accordance with the official ratings given by EGR Magazine. The site maintains a stream of genuine information that has been helpful to punters and novice bettors who strive to strike the right chord at betting. The top three bookmaker sites in the limelight are Bet365, Paddy Power and William Hill (<http://www.bestbookmakers.net/bookmakers/william-hill>).

Bet365 offers a money back option which means that if any of the Euro 2012 match ends up with a 0-0 score, all the losing bets on First goalscorer, last goalscorer, anytime goalscorer, half-time/full-time, all correct score markets and all scorecast markets will be refunded. "A goalless draw can never be the worst result with bet365," mentions Bet365.com. Moreover, this bookmarker is completely mobile compatible and thus can be accessed while watching the match.

Similarly, the next best bookmaker site Paddy Power (<http://www.bestbookmakers.net/bookmakers/paddy-power>), offers daily money back specials for the Euro 2012 sports betting while William Hill has a free £25 bonus just for opening an account and placing the first bet. "Both new and veteran sports fans will appreciate the incredibly rich and exciting football betting environment at William Hill. Stats, matches and team information, player bios and football highlights are at your fingertips," says spokesperson at WilliamHill.com. The best part of these bookie sites is that live bets can be made real-time during the actual matches and have been honored by bookie awards and ranks. "Bet365 was crowned as "Sports Betting Operator" and "In-Play Sports Operator" and shortlisted for "Operator of the Year" award.

Bet365 (<http://www.bestbookmakers.net/bookmakers/bet365>) also ranks first in "EGR Power 50 report which proves again that it should be considered the best bookmaker for another year," claims www.bestbookmakers.net and further adds," whereas William Hill won "Operator of the Year" award and was shortlisted for "In-Play Sports Operator" and "Sports Betting Operator". Reportedly Paddy Power made it to the third position in "Sports Betting Operator" award and was placed 3rd in "EGR Power 50.

About Bookmakers.net:

Bookmakers.net was launched in 2007 to make it easier on bettors and punters to choose from the best bookmakers in the UK. The site is owned by an ex-Marketing Manager of a well-known UK bookmaker and retrieves valuable and updated ranking information about bookmakers on the basis of EGR awards and other awards of the same caliber won by these bookie sites.
