Chak 89, London's award winning Indian restaurant had another Bollywood celebrity added to its portfolio of celebrities. Ali Zafar, the Pakistani singer and actor, who played the leading role in Teri Bin Laden, popped in on Tuesday evening to have a meal.

Ali Zafar contacted the owner of Chak 89 Fukhera Khalid on Monday to say that he was in town and wanted to come in and have a meal. Fukhera Khalid gladly invited him and promised Ali a good evening.

Living up to Fukhera Khalid's word and Chak 89's service and food, Ali was not disappointed, as he spent the evening laughing and joking with everyone while tucking into delicious and traditional Indian food.

After his meal Ali happily posed for photos and signed the famous Chak 89 wall.

Fukhera Khalid, who was at Chak 89 on the night said, "If there is a place in London that has surprises and charisma its none other than Chak 89, truly a spice above the rest, you never know when who's going to come next."

Chak 89, known for its quality traditional Indian cuisine, ambience, decor and service, which is based in Mitcham, Surrey, about 5 minutes' drive from Tooting Broadway and Colliers Wood and has been linked to a host of celebrities, who have complimented the quality of food and service, they have all signed the famous Chak 89 Wall, which is now a feature in the restaurant.
