Part-funded by the European Union, UKTI is delighted to bring some of the UK's best companies to investigate the business opportunities in one of the most dynamic markets, Russia.

UKTI London has carefully selected British companies that are deemed suitable for the Russian market with a view to establishing long-term business relations.

As Dr. John Verrier, Chairman & Managing Director of Anderman & Company explained, Anderman Industrial Ceramics is a leading international supplier of technical ceramics and refractories with experience in sourcing, stocking and worldwide distribution.

This knowledge has positioned Anderman Ceramics at the highest levels of product and service quality providing TOTAL SOLUTIONS for technical ceramics and refractories online and supports this ofine with a network of sales.

Anderman has always been prepared for new markets, but now more than ever! Not only in terms of distribution facilities in Europe, Asia and America but also, with an international team Anderman are ready to respond to increased competition and the resulting demands of fast response. Anderman's goal is to change market conditions and customer expectations on the ground.

The objective for visiting Russia is to gain a full understanding of this important market before establishing operations in the territory.

Anderman look forward to meeting and doing business with potential customers and partners in Russia!

Established in 1947 and its experience in sourcing, stocking and selling technical ceramics worldwide has positioned Anderman Ceramics at the highest levels of product and service quality. They offer an extensive range of standard technical ceramics products, as well as, custom-design components.
