

Electrician Training Centre Partners with Leading Insurance Provider

Submitted by: Electrician Courses 4U

Monday, 29 October 2012

One of the UK's leading electrician training providers, Electrical Training 4U, has announced its new partnership with industry insurance experts First 4 Trades Insurance. The move will be welcomed by customers who are eager to benefit from competitively priced insurance policies specific to those within the electrical industry.

Customers gaining their qualifications at the Sussex-based training centre will automatically be entitled to cashback offers on quoted premiums. Nigel Best, Managing Director of Electrical Training 4U commented, "We have developed and announced this strategic partnership to give our customers tangible value added products to save them time and money after they have successfully completed their training with us."

"The upfront costs of training to become a qualified domestic electrician are by no means cheap and, if we are able to provide a little financial relief to our customers by forming such partnerships with key providers such as First 4 Trades Insurance, then we are keen to do so."

"Insurance aside, one of our key aims as a training provider is to equip our customers with the contacts, knowledge and knowhow to successfully set themselves up in business as quickly as possible. We see this partnership as a logical step in supporting this aim."

For further information about this partnership, please call 01444 871113 or visit www.electricaltraining4u.co.uk