Chak 89 the award winning London restaurant and banqueting venue has won again, the ‘Best Restaurant in London Award’ at the prestigious British Curry Awards 2012.

The star studded event which is the Oscar equivalent in the restaurant industry, was held at the Battersea Evolution on Monday 26th November with the likes of Sir Terry Wogan, Rory Bremner, David Seaman, Jenny Bond and many more. There was even a message from David Cameron himself which summed up the perfect day for all the restaurateurs on the night.

But there was one restaurateur, Mr Frank Khalid, the owner of Chak 89, who was above them all and scooped the long awaited Award of the night.

“The Best Restaurant in London Award!”

After picking up his award, Frank Khalid said, “I’m lost for words, this is the Oscars of the restaurant industry and it’s absolutely amazing to win such a prestige award”. Chak 89, based in Mitcham, South East London, has been known and is recognised for all the awards that it has won, but none so bigger than this “Oscar.” With Chak 89’s traditional style of cooking Indian cuisine, five star decor and service, Chak 89 has drawn a host of celebrities from across the globe to acknowledge the superb food it provides to its clients which make Chak 89 “A Spice Above the Rest”
