LONDON (10 January 2013) — The special issue of National Geographic Traveller - Family is available now on UK newsstands, focusing on trips on a budget for the whole family.

Cover story: National Geographic Traveller – Family tackles the issue of travelling with your family on a budget, whether the budget is £500, £1,000 or more. From city breaks to Lisbon, Krakow or even Texas to beach breaks to Antigua, or taking your teens on safari in Tanzania, the aim is to highlight great escapes that ensure a truly memorable travel experience.

Maria Pieri, editorial director, says: “It’s not cheap to take your family on holiday and when you’re also looking for a great travel experience, it can often feel the two don’t meet.

“In this issue we set out to prove you can travel on a budget and still have an inspiring travel experience, whether it’s a great day out, your half-term break or your main summer getaway. From the obvious to the unbelievable, why not try a trip with a difference on a budget you can afford?

Also in this issue:

- Three faces of France: Morzine, Nantes and Normandy
- Sweden’s winter wonderland and 10 other great snow breaks
- A ‘how-to’ guide to India with teens
- Join the olive harvest in Turkey on a volunteer holiday, or try our other suggested working breaks
- Top 10 UK rural retreats
- Sleep: Where to stay in South Africa, Portugal and Spain
- City guides featuring New York, Marrakech and Barcelona, plus pull-out kids’ guides
- Real life — discussion topics include: have baby will travel; have teen – will label them into tribes; have an extended family. Great for multi-generational breaks

PLUS our fabulous competition: Win a seven-night trip for a family of four to Jordan.

The spring special issue of National Geographic Traveller - Family is on sale from 10 January on newsstands with a cover price of GBP £3.85. It can also be added to a National Geographic Traveller (UK) subscription.

National Geographic Traveler (USA) is the world's most widely read travel magazine. It championed sustainable travel before it was cool and, eight times annually, celebrates journeys that are about place, experience, culture, authenticity, living like the locals and great photography. It makes a distinction between tourism and travel and stresses inquisitive, not acquisitive, trips. It employs storytelling and you-are-there photography to inspire readers to pick up and go. And, with the theme of "All Travel, All the Time," it eschews fashion and fluff in favour of articles that offer a strong sense of place, inspiring narratives that make readers take trips, and solid service information to help them plan those trips.

The National Geographic Society is one of the world's largest non profit scientific and educational organizations. Founded in 1888 to "increase and diffuse geographic knowledge," the Society's mission is to inspire people to care about the planet. National Geographic reflects the world through its magazines, television programs, films, music and radio, books, DVDs, maps, exhibitions, live events, school publishing programs, interactive media and merchandise. National Geographic magazine, the Society's official journal, published in English and 33 local-language editions, is read by more than 40 million people each month. The National Geographic Channel reaches 370 million households in 34 languages in 168 countries. National Geographic Digital Media receives more than 15 million visitors a month. National Geographic has funded more than 9,600 scientific research, conservation and exploration projects and supports an education program promoting geography literacy.
