

Red Stack Technology announce the acquisition of Business Analytics Specialists, SolStonePlus now known as 3sixty-analytics Ltd

Submitted by: Red Stack Tech
Tuesday, 29 January 2013

Red Stack Technology has acquired SolStonePlus, one of the UK's leading Business Analytics and Enterprise Performance Management specialists. This will mean that the Red Stack Technology group will now consist of Oracle Platinum Partner e-DBA, and 3sixty-analytics Ltd.

As part of the acquisition, the SolStonePlus brand will no longer exist and has been replaced by 3sixty-analytics. e-DBA Ltd and 3sixty-analytics Ltd combined offer customers a full end to end solution focusing on the Oracle stack.

This exciting new venture will mean that the knowledge and skills of two prominent Oracle Partners will come together to provide customers with an even higher level of service and a wider range of products and service capabilities.

Becoming part of the Red Stack Technology group will enable 3sixty-analytics to complement the products and services already offered by Oracle Platinum Partner and the UK's leading provider of Oracle Managed and Professional Services, e-DBA Ltd. Together, the two companies are able to offer organisations the flexibility to choose the right technology for their business whilst working with a partner who can offer all the relevant skills and services.

3sixty-analytics will focus on Business Analytics and Enterprise Performance Management, whilst supporting those services offered by e-DBA.

e-DBA already has a solid reputation within the Oracle marketplace and has won numerous awards, most recently being named 'Oracle Technology Partner of the Year'. e-DBA's focus used to lie in Database but since their MBO in 2010, their range of services has expanded to cover everything across the Oracle Technology Stack. Engineered Systems which includes Oracle Exadata and Oracle Exalytics have been a real growth area for e-DBA over the past 12 months which has led e-DBA to purchase their very own Oracle Exadata X3-2 and Oracle Exalytics X4-2 boxes enabling them to provide proof of concepts to any customer, anywhere.

Alex Louth, Managing Director of Red Stack Technology says 'We are very excited to have 3sixty-analytics on board as part of the Red Stack Technology group. The skills and depth of knowledge they bring not only around business analytics but also across the whole technology stack is second to none. The biggest beneficiaries will be our customers. They now have a partner who can provide full end to end solutions without comprising quality or service'

Michael Bull, 3sixty-analytics (formerly SolStonePlus) says 'We are looking forward to joining forces with one of the leading UK Oracle partners as part of the Red Stack Technology group. We believe that operating as part of Red Stack Technology will allow us to deliver our services to a much wider customer base and enter markets which previously we wouldn't be able to.'

For more information on the services available from e-DBA visit www.e-dba.com, and for more information on the solutions provided by SolStonePlus visit www.solstoneplus.com